Shall we read the story of the Little Lizard together?

There once was a Castle in the middle of a large forest.

In the castle there lived a little green lizard that had never left that place to see the light of day. One day she got up the nerve to go to the big main door of the castle. The door was open and so she decided to go outside.

When she appeared at the big castle door, the Sun was waiting there smiling and said:

"Welcome, Little Lizard!!!

Come take a walk in the flowery meadow!!! Come and play with the beautiful butterflies!!!"

The little Lizard was so very, very happy!!!

She ran outside and soon came upon the Blue Stream.

- "What a beautiful stream!!!"

She thought.

- "Is the stream singing for me, Mr. Sun?"

The sun answered that the stream never stopped singing. The stream thanked God for the gift of life and it returned the gift in the form a harmonious melody.

It also gave water to all of the thirsty animals for them to drink, and offered delicious fish to the fishermen.

The Little Green Lizard came closer to the stream with her heart full of happiness.

When she looked into the water, she could see the reflection of her own image.

She thought happily to herself:

- "I have a friend. Hoorah!

I have a friend!"

The affectionate sun, who was a very dear friend, explained to her that it was her reflection, just as if she were looking into a big mirror.

In seeing this, she discovered that it would be really nice to have someone else with her.

That way she wouldn't need to be so alone...

The lonely little green Lizard asked the sun to bring a friend to live with her...

And that's what he did!!!

He went speedily to wake up another little lizard that lived alone in another part of the castle.

He called her to come outside and the two little lizards met each other...

They thanked their friend, the Sun, for being so considerate and for being such a great friend.
